

ALLELON MISSIONAL ORDER

For the past two years Allelon has been in conversation with leaders around the globe about the questions of forming missional leaders in a post Christian world.

We have a deepening sense that the task of forming leaders will take time. This is going to be a multi-generational movement in which we are continually discerning the shaping of the holy gusts of the Spirit. At the same time, we have been struck by the almost universal consensus we have heard about the need for the formation of some kind of missional order.

The Schedule is an attempt to lay out some of the key processes and purposes for our time together. We offer this to you as a way of giving you a clearer picture of our goals and intentions around our time together.

We will shape our time with the practices of Daily Office and Dwelling in the Word. Our meals, housing and recreation time will all be shaped to make space for reflection, listening and discernment.

Andrew Jones and Pete Askew join us as conversation partners in this process of discovery; however, we recognize that many of those coming bring with them a wealth of wisdom and experience. It is our goal to create a space for listening and learning from one another in both smaller and larger groups.
